

wisconsin
health literacy

Health Information You Can Trust Additional Resources

There are many supportive materials to give a deeper background on digital literacy and health literacy.

Consider exploring the following resources:

- Wisconsin Health Literacy “Health Online: Finding Information You Can Trust” background: <https://wisconsinliteracy.org/health-literacy/programs/current-programs/health-online-finding-information-you-can-trust.html>
- National Network of Libraries of Medicine and All of Us Digital Health Literacy Tools: <https://nnlm.gov/all-of-us/resources/digitalhealthliteracy>
 - This website has the facilitator script and PowerPoint slides
- MedlinePlus Evaluating Health Information tutorial: <https://medlineplus.gov/webeval/EvaluatingInternetHealthInformationTutorial.pdf>
- Identifying and Combating Health Misinformation: <https://nnlm.gov/misinfo>
- NNLM Free online training – a variety of topics covered, some classes specifically for public librarians: <https://nnlm.gov/training>
- Pew Research Center stays up-to-date on online data use and other research studies related to digital literacy: <https://www.pewresearch.org/internet>
- Online health information course supported by the Public Library Association: <https://digitallearn.org/courses/online-health-information>