

Ancestry.com from home: tutorial

MORE and Ancestry.com have partnered to make the library version available to our library patrons at home while our libraries are closed! It's pretty easy to do.

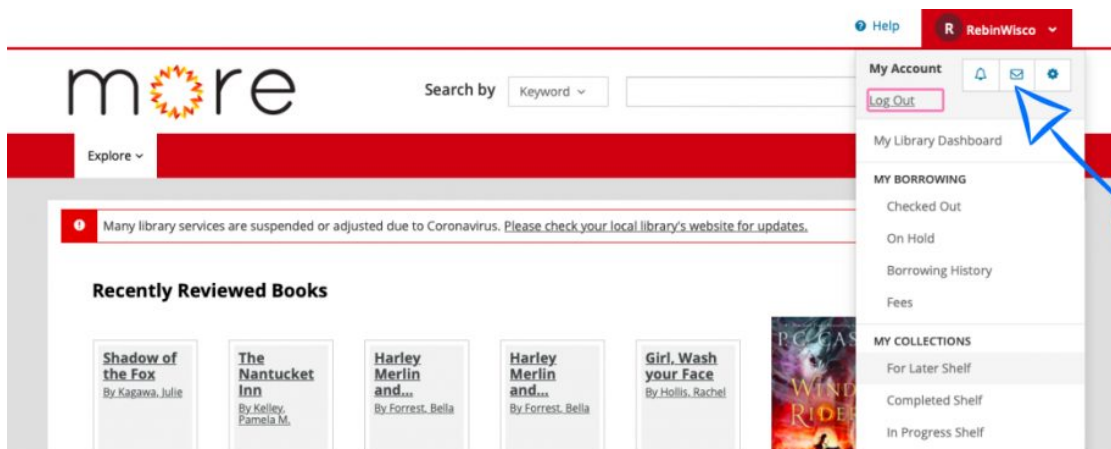

Log In from more.lib.wi.us

You'll need the bar code from the back of your library card to login.

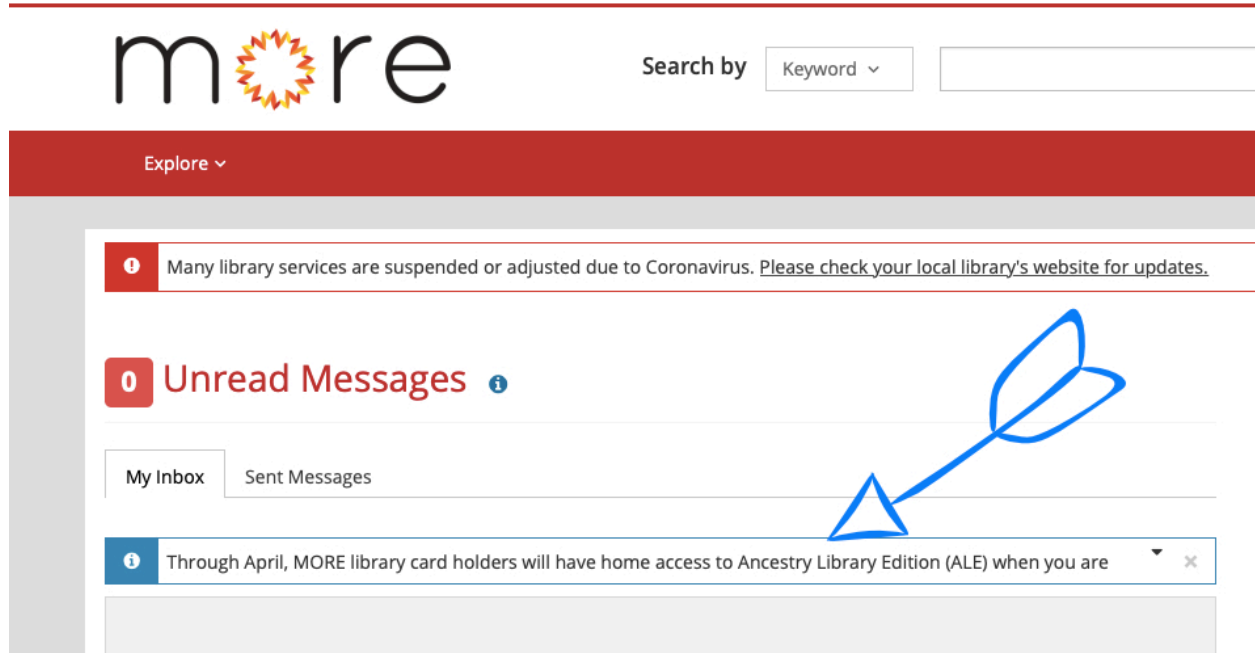

Select the red box in the upper-right with your username

The user name in this picture is "RebinWisco." It should be your username in that spot. That will bring you to your account menu. Use the envelope icon to open your messages.

Ancestry access info is in the message in your inbox

Click on the message to expand the email and see all the link that will bring you right to the Ancestry.com website. Enjoy!

The screenshot shows the MORE library website interface. At the top left is the logo "more" with a sunburst icon over the letter "o". To the right is a search bar with the text "Search by" and a dropdown menu set to "Keyword". Below the search bar is a red navigation bar with the text "Explore" and a downward arrow. The main content area features a red notification banner with a white exclamation mark icon and the text: "Many library services are suspended or adjusted due to Coronavirus. Please check your local library's website for updates." Below this is a section for "Unread Messages" with a red square containing the number "0" and a blue information icon. Underneath are two tabs: "My Inbox" (active) and "Sent Messages". A blue hand-drawn arrow points from the "Unread Messages" section down to a blue notification banner at the bottom of the page. This banner contains a white exclamation mark icon and the text: "Through April, MORE library card holders will have home access to Ancestry Library Edition (ALE) when you are".
